

Good afternoon. I work for the DoD in the Joint Staff J7, Force Development Directorate. We recently completed a concept development and experimentation project with 17 other nations and NATO that focused on developing solutions for establishing and maintaining cyber situational awareness. One of the solutions developed by our community of interest was an Information Sharing Framework (ISF) (attached here for your reference). The ISF is very much a living document. We looked at cross-sector and cross-nation information sharing. I offer it to you as a data point to consider as NIST moves out to execute against the PPD-21 task. I would be happy to share more about the project, who was involved, and the current status of our transition efforts in getting the solutions into the hands of end-users.

Respectfully,
Jess Todd
