

Jennifer Bisceglie is an award-winning business owner of a multi-million dollar supply chain and logistics company that helps create comprehensive cyber, supply chain risk management process and technology solutions for numerous government agencies and commercial entities. Prior to founding Interos, Jennifer honed her 20 years of supply chain management experience in software companies and global distribution companies such as Manhattan Associates, Nine West Shoes (now Jones Apparel), and American Eagle Outfitters.

In 2005, Jennifer launched Interos to deliver comprehensive supply chain solutions to federal agencies looking to mitigate their supply chain risk and enable them to conduct business as effectively as possible. The company's clients include the Department of Energy, National Security Agency, Food and Drug Administration, Center for Disease Control and Prevention, the Department of State, U.S. Navy, Defense Logistics Agency (DLA) and Customs and Border Protection; as well as several commercial clients.